

Le Mohican – Total Change of Look.

Commercial and Legal Statement

In every day life you may keep a product to avoid expenditure for a new one. In Webhostings its the opposite: to keep a product, you have to pay more. In the given case the provider demands additional payment for not upgrading the programming-language of the CMS to version php 8.1 and its database mysql to version 5. Upgrading the site meant a lot of work, practically a new built.

The present site is a new built which is meant to demand a minimum of work to keep it up to changing standards. Dynamically composed pages of the former site are replaced by static pdf-files while nothing stands against adding new dynamical pages.

The former site was meant to be “experimental” with mainly its technical advantages or disadvantages in mind. The present one is thought of more as the author’s tool to quickly remember earlier work and preoccupations. That’s why it’s called “KS’ Private Archive” and it’s layout is adapted to “handy” viewing and reading, e.g. with smartphones.

“Private” of course does’nt mean “strictly personal”. To the extend that content should be kept away from the “public” the access can allways be restricted and “securized” eg. by the usual Identifier/password log-in-procedure. The idea is here (as it was in the past) that some people would be interested in one ore the other of the texts and other materials assembled for mainly KS’s interests and use.
